Great Smoky Mountains National Park

How the Smokies haven't been named the eighth Wonder of the World yet is a wonder in and of itself. Since being formally dedicated in 1940 "for the permanent enjoyment of the people" by then-President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Great Smoky Mountains National Park has become the most-frequented national park in the country. And, with over 500,000 acres of cascading waterfalls, plunging valleys and vibrant vegetation to explore at no cost to nature lovers, it only takes one visit to understand why.

The best way to experience this vast expanse of beauty? We recommend lacing up your boots, grabbing your binoculars and hitting the ground hiking. From the original Appalachian Trail to breathtaking wildflower walks, the Park is host to 150 trails that cover over 800 miles of pristine backcountry. You'll be able to get up close and personal with flora and fauna that have been thriving here for millennia and hopefully spot some animals from a safe distance, too.

The Smokies by car isn't a bad choice either. Roaring Fork Motor Nature Trail is a popular road that will take you on a one-way tour of more than five miles of rushing mountain streams, old-growth forest and historic buildings. Other notable reasons to pull off include the Sugarlands Visitor Center, Alum Cave Trail, Clingmans Dome and Chimney Tops Overlook. After you hit the highlights, choose your own adventure. Head to Greenbrier, a six-mile road that's any wildflower watcher's dream or, if you feel like stretching your legs, wind your way to Ramsey Cascades for a four-mile trek to the tallest falls in the whole mountain range.

Rest assured though, there's no wrong approach to seeing the Smokies. Adventure awaits—it's only a question of what you discover along the way.

GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAINS NATIONAL PARK PARKING TAGS HELP PAVE THE WAY FOR IMPROVED VISITOR SERVICES AND PARK PRESERVATION

Beginning March 1, a valid parking tag will be required for all visitors parking for more than 15 minutes in Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Parking tags will not be required for motorists who simply pass through the area or park for less than 15 minutes.

Daily ($5), weekly ($15), and annual ($40) parking tags will be available for purchase at kiosks and visitor centers as well as online at recreation.gov or smokiesinformation.org. Each tag is valid for use in a single vehicle and must include a license plate number matching the vehicle in which it is displayed. Tags must be displayed physically in vehicles; digital representations will not be accepted. Parking tags do not guarantee a parking spot in a specific location or at a specific time.

By purchasing a parking tag, you'll be helping to improve visitor services in the park and preserve the Smokies for generations to come. All revenue generated through the sales of parking tags will stay in the Smokies to directly improve visitor experiences and help fund things like trail maintenance, custodial services, trash removal, historic cabin preservation, and staffing for increased ranger presence across the park.

For more information about parking tags, scan the code with your camera app or visit go.nps.gov/GRSMfees.

THE BEAR NECESSITIES

The thrill of seeing a black bear in the wild—it's a quintessential Smokies experience we want all of our visitors to have... safely. Please follow these tips to keep both you and our bear friends out of harm's way.

1. Always remain at least 50 yards from a bear.
2. Never approach a bear or let one approach you.
3. Never turn your back to a bear. Remain watchful.
4. Do not feed bears or place food to attract them.
5. Only place trash in animal-resistant cans or dumpsters.

CADES COVE

If a bear sighting is what's going to make or break your trip, consider taking a scenic, one-and-a-half-hour drive out to Cades Cove. With an 11-mile loop road that promises sweeping mountain views and plenty of wildlife (all from the comfy confines of your car, we'd like to add), it's no wonder this isolated valley is one of the most popular destinations in the entire Park.

PRO TIPS

Early mornings and late evenings are the best times of day to spot a bear.

Wednesdays are vehicle-free days in Cades Cove. Plan to enjoy the area by bike or on foot instead!

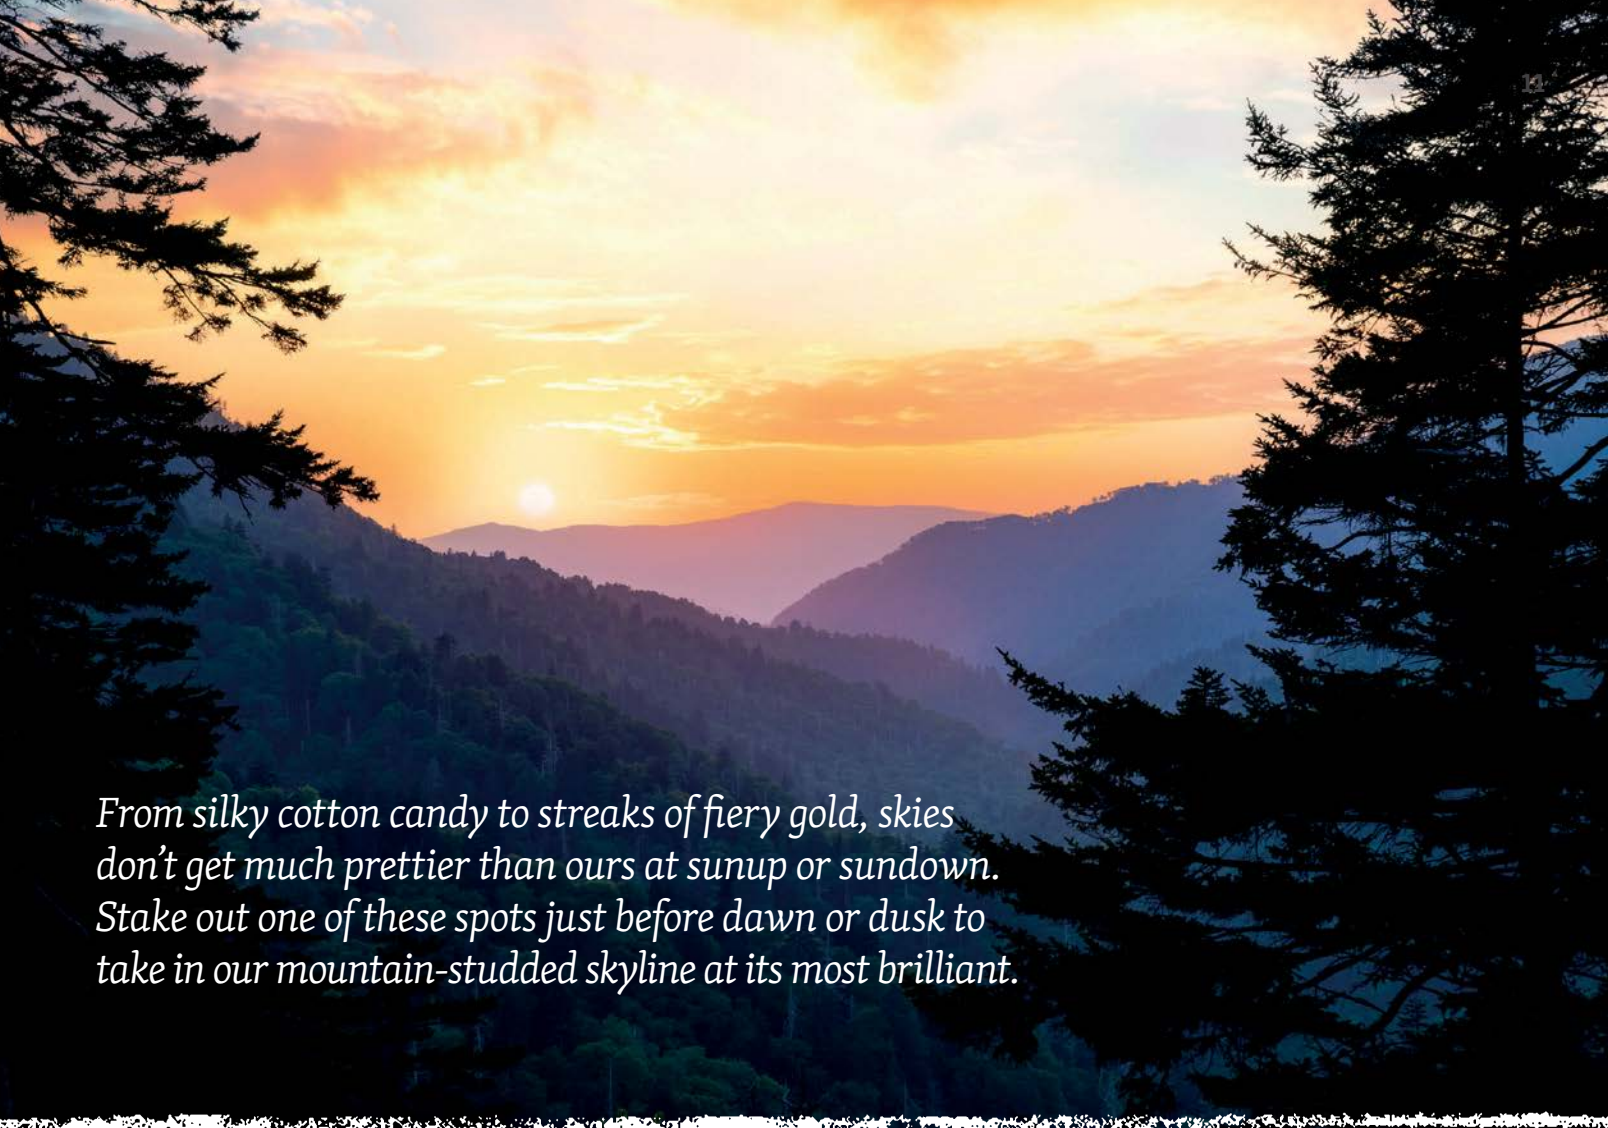

LEAVE NO TRACE

Protecting our planet is a group effort. To help minimize our environmental impact and preserve the natural beauty of the Smokies for generations to come, we ask that you abide by this set of outdoor ethics.

- ➡ Plan ahead and prepare for extreme weather, hazards and emergencies.
- ➡ Travel, camp and hike on durable surfaces and those that show obvious signs of use.
- ➡ Dispose of waste properly. This includes packing out all trash, leftover food and litter.
- ➡ Leave what you find. Observe and snap photos but don't take anything with you.
- ➡ Minimize campfire impact by using a stove and building fires in existing pits.
- ➡ Respect wildlife. Do not follow, approach or feed animals and keep pets leashed.
- ➡ Be considerate of other visitors. Yield to others on trails and be respectful of noise levels.

DON'T FORGET TO LOOK UP

From silky cotton candy to streaks of fiery gold, skies don't get much prettier than ours at sunup or sundown. Stake out one of these spots just before dawn or dusk to take in our mountain-studded skyline at its most brilliant.

SUNRISES

Gatlinburg SkyLift Park: In the springtime, views of the sunrise are so breathtaking from the top of Crockett Mountain that they made it a ticketed event. Smoky Mountain Sunrise gives you early access to the Park to enjoy live music way up on the SkyDeck before witnessing a panoramic stunner.

Little River Gorge Road: This winding road not only connects Gatlinburg and Cades Cove but it's also a primetime stretch of pavement for seeing our #1 star make its morning debut. Starting at the Sugarlands Visitor Center and ending around Laurel Falls, there are plenty of pull-outs along the way to watch and be wowed.

Myrtle Point: This scenic overlook sits atop Mount LeConte, the third highest peak in all of Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Myrtle Point is a short hike from LeConte Lodge, meaning you can be at the summit ready to sit back, relax and enjoy the show in no time.

SUNSETS

Anakeesta: Just a Chondola ride away from downtown Gatlinburg awaits the best destination to soak up "golden hour" in the Smokies. Whether you're in the heart of Firefly Village or sipping a craft cocktail at Watering Can Bar, any vantage point in Anakeesta promises an incredible palette of colors overhead at dusk.

Clingmans Dome: At 6,643 feet, this is the highest point in the Smokies and an unparalleled place to watch the evening sky come to life. Take the short, but steep, hike from the parking lot up to the Observation Tower for unobstructed views of nature's most impressive show. Be sure to bring a jacket for the peak, as temps tend to drop when the sun does, and a flashlight for the way down!

Morton Overlook: About a 30-40 minute drive from downtown, this is one of the most popular sunset-viewing sites in the area. Arrive early to secure parking and your chance to watch the sun go down in spectacular fashion—framed perfectly by the surrounding mountains. We promise it's one overlook that isn't overrated.

TRAVEL TIPS

A Seasonal Guide to Gatlinburg

If you love seasons, well, you're in the right place. We get all four of them. And while we love the variety, it can often be tricky for incoming travelers to know what to pack. Here's a look at what kind of weather you can generally expect.

SPRING Springtime is perfect for hiking through our popular mountain trails that host a lively scene of greenery and wildflowers. Temps can still be a bit chilly, with lows ranging between 40-50 degrees, but it's nothing a light jacket can't handle.

SUMMER It's primetime for fun in the sun. Temps rarely exceed the upper 80s, but the humidity can often make it seem hotter. Thankfully, you can always count on being able to conquer a nearby rapid or summit a mountain to cool off.

FALL Autumn in the Smokies starts warm but, as the leaf peepers stream in, they bring the cooler temps with them. Plan to bring a jacket to admire the fall foliage as highs typically drop to the 50s toward peak color-changing season.

WINTER Skiing. Snowboarding. Hot tubbing. Just like our winter activities, our winter temperatures vary. Plan to layer up for anything from the 40s down to the 20s and remember that higher elevations skew colder. Be sure to check the weather for unexpected storms before beginning your trip.

PARKING AND TRANSPORTATION

Getting to your favorite attractions, restaurants and shops should be a breeze—Gatlinburg is full of places to park. Throughout downtown, you'll find several public parking lots as well as two parking garages. Near the Aquarium and Traffic Light #3, both garages offer more than 350 spaces each. You can even check spot availability online in real time before you set out for the day.

There are also several private parking options that will put you just steps from all the action. These lots can be found in the Parkway, Reagan Drive and Historic Nature Trail/Airport Road areas and hold spaces for passenger vehicles, buses and RVs.

In addition to lots and garages, we have our own trolley system here in Gatlinburg. Free Park and Ride Lots are situated just outside the downtown area where the trolley will pick you up for your quick, no-cost ride to the center of the city. Download the Gatlinburg App to access our Trolley Locator so you can keep tabs on this convenient mode of transportation.

Astra Lumina

Sleeping with the Sharks

Now while the splendors of our wooded oasis are best seen by day, the Parkway at night is not something to sleep on. Live music and spirits are as abundant as stars in our inky-black skies, so take your pick. Dance the night away at Ole Red or shoot your moonshine in the shadows like they did back in the day at The Barrelhouse. For the food-motivated, we suggest bellying up to the bar at Boudicca's Celtic Pub with a hearty plate of fish 'n chips and a rich, heady Guinness or checking out Gatlinburg Brewing Co., the craft beer and pizza joint run by a Sevier County local.

The evening-time activities don't stop at food and drink though—tap into the entire family's wild side when you Sleep with the Sharks at Ripley's Aquarium of the Smokies. With a scavenger hunt, late-night activities and more, it's sure to be an exciting, sleeping-with-one-eye-open kind of experience the kids won't soon forget.

If you'd rather hang out under the stars than under the sea, you can have a downright celestial experience at Anakeesta. The theme park's new enchanted night walk, Astra Lumina, transforms an unlikely mountain trail into an ethereal pathway to outer space. Surrounded by a vision of cosmic projections and astral song, this is one awe-inspiring universe you'll want to sweep the entire family away to before meeting the rest of us back down on Earth.

Gatlinburg Fantasy of Lights Christmas Parade

You've probably witnessed a Christmas parade but, odds are, none quite like ours. Seriously. Each year, the merriment includes everything from celebrity grand marshals and larger-than-life balloons to festive floats, local marching bands and more—all culminating in the grand illumination of the Gatlinburg Christmas Tree at Traffic Light #3. In fact, it makes for a lineup so captivating that the whole bash is broadcast on a national scale! And, if you stake out your spot along the parade route early enough, you could even score a spot in a television zone to wave "happy holidays" to everyone tuning in at home.

PARADES

Fourth of July Midnight Parade

Our love for this country is award-winning. Literally. Every year since 1975, we kick off a National Geographic Traveler "Top Ten Parade to See in the U.S." at 12:01 a.m. Our early-morning 4th festivities have even gotten attention outside national borders, winning several Grand Pinnacle Awards from the International Festivals and Events Association. Oh say can you celebrate?

Life's for Living

Seize the day on the Strip and beyond.

With one of the country's finest national parks in our backyard, adventure seems to find us more often than not. But that doesn't mean we don't like creating our own excitement here in Gatlinburg. We're constantly dreaming up new, unexpected ways to help people get in touch with their inner explorer and connect with the Great Outdoors.

Let's start with our plethora of theme parks. High above the clouds, Gatlinburg SkyLift Park dares visitors to summit Crockett Mountain and stroll across the longest pedestrian suspension bridge on the continent. Then there's Anakeesta—the whimsical, family-friendly wonderland host to the highest point in Gatlinburg, the longest tree-based skywalk in North America and the country's very first enchanted experience of its kind (see page 15 for more on this). Or if you have your heart set on hitting the slopes, we suggest Ober Mountain. After Thanksgiving, it's the only ski spot in the entire state of Tennessee! But, with "snowless" tubing, off-season ice skating, bumper cars and festivals in the spring and fall, you can also enjoy plenty of fun and games here year-round.

Scan for details.

Ripley's Aquarium of the Smokies

For those looking for a real rush, whitewater rafting might be more your speed. Rafting in the Smokies, Nantahala Outdoor Center (NOC) and Smoky Mountain Outdoors are just a few of the premier local rafting companies that have been helping adventurers of all ages take on the Pigeon River's class II-IV rapids. Need to slow it down? Keep heading downstream to reach calmer waters ideal for a scenic family float trip.

Not all fun is to be had outdoors, however. Ripley's Aquarium of the Smokies is one of our favorite spots to connect with our wild sides. Splash with the stingrays, sleep with the sharks or be wowed by over 10,000 exotic sea creatures—this state-of-the-art, interactive facility is a whale of a time no matter how you look at it.

CALLING ALL GLASS RAISERS

DISTILLERIES & WINERIES

Ole Smoky Moonshine

Here's to the Here and Now

Who's ready to wet their whistle?
We're pouring.

If these hills could talk, they'd definitely have a thing or two to say about our rebellious past. Because here in the heart of the Smokies, we have a strong heritage in bootlegging. It began in the mid-1700s when the Irish and Scots brought their whiskey-distilling ways with them overseas. For years, the drink flowed in these hills without so much as a hiccup in operations but, eventually, the government imposed a hefty federal tax on the spirit, driving many to do their work in secret. So, under the veil of night, "moonshiners" continued their prohibited-yet-profitable craft for the sake of spirit enthusiasts everywhere.

But that's all off the record, of course. Now, with moonshine on the right side of the law, Gatlinburg has three (very public and very legal) distilleries in town—each with its own backstory, traditions, imaginative flavors and stillhouse tours the entire family can partake in.

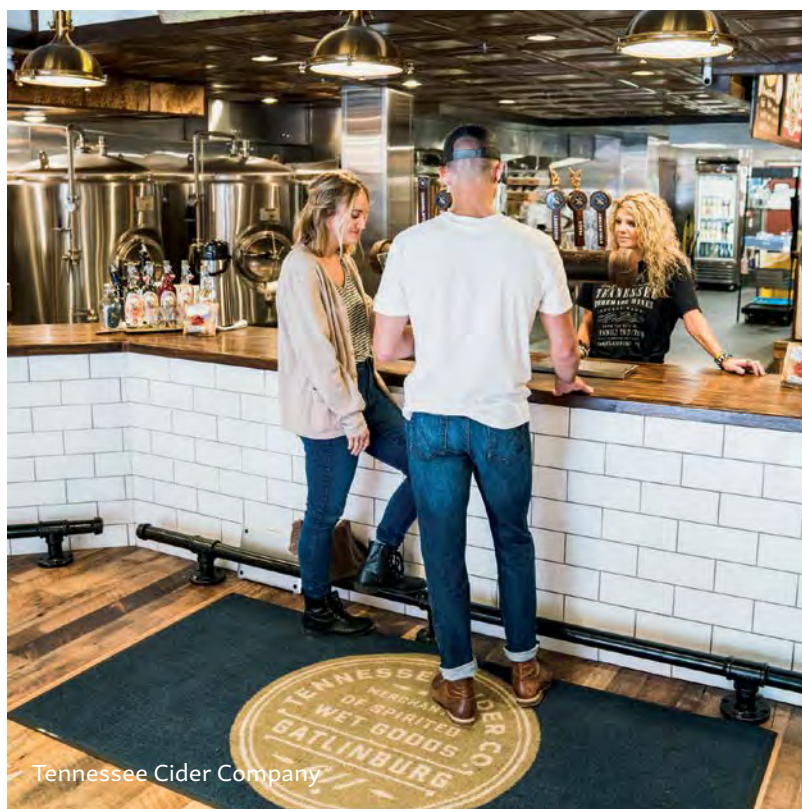

Scan for details.

Sugarlands Distilling Company

Winemaking, on the other hand, doesn't have quite as glamorous a history in Gatlinburg. But that's not holding our local vintners back. Just embark on one of our two wine trails to see what we mean. Both Rocky Top and Gatlinburg Wine Trails have free tastings at each stop. Just grab your official Wine Trail Passport and you'll be ready to sample your way through the best vino the Smokies have to offer.

No matter where you choose to quench your thirst, you can guarantee that every glass, tumbler or shooter has been a labor of love by Gatlinburg locals. Bottoms up!

Cliff Top Restaurant

Our Table Stays Set

Welcome to a safe haven for empty stomachs.

When we say there's something for everyone in Gatlinburg, we mean the odds of you leaving hungry are slim to none. With restaurants on either side of the Parkway and then some, there's no shortage of barbecue joints, comfort food kitchens or sweet shops for the whole family to enjoy. The only problem is having to choose.

If we had to nudge you in one direction or another, traditional homestyle cooking is the way to go. From collard greens and meat-and-three plates to everything fried under the sun, Gatlinburg has a knack for southern delicacies.

Whatever your palette desires, the eats in Gatlinburg are ones you'll really want to write home about. From savory to sweet, you'll have more than enough options to fuel up for an action-packed day. Whether you opt for a hand-selected steak and signature salad, southern-inspired barbeque, or a mountainous stack of Gatlinburg's staple breakfast pancakes, make sure to bring your appetite along for the adventure.

And while we could write pages and pages about the rest of the restaurants that keep us satisfied (we actually have several following this), we'd be remiss not to mention the full-on celebrations that make Gatlinburg a don't-miss foodie destination.

Scan for details.

GATLINBURG PANCAKE WEEK

The flapjack has quite the history here in Gatlinburg, so it's only right we spend a full seven days a year honoring it fork-in-hand. Back in the early 1900s, the breakfast staple became popular among the local logging community, proving to be a hearty meal for hungry lumberjacks. And while the logging business eventually came to a close, the humble pancake lived on. In 1960, the Gerding family opened The Pancake Pantry—the first restaurant in the state dedicated to the dish—and, since then, six other pancake houses have started serving up their own unique stack. That's one pancake house for every day of the week. Convenient!

GATLINBURGER WEEK

If you thought one week dedicated to a single food was enough, you must not be from around here. GatlinBURGER Week is another special seven days out of the year when local restaurants sling their best burger for just $9, all while contending for the highly renowned title of GatlinBURGER Burgermeister. Passports are available for residents and visitors alike to plan their Tour de Meat, and the rest of the rules are simple. Be nice. Be patient. Be generous to those feeding you. And don't forget to post your favorite #GatlinBURGER on your socials!

The Park Grill

ONLY IN GATLINBURG

What makes Gatlinburg, Gatlinburg? We're glad you asked. While we might seem like a simple mountain town from afar, we think you'll see that there's a lot here that you won't soon find anywhere else.

THE TOP DOG

For 40 years, Fannie Farkle's has been serving up family fun, games and the legendary Ogle Dog, a footlong delicacy named after one of Gatlinburg's founders. You might wonder what makes this corn dog so much better than the rest, but the recipe is one well-kept secret that's staying put in the Smokies.

SUGAR & A SHOW

You don't often get a behind-the-scenes look at how your favorite candies come to be, but since 1939, Aunt Mahalia's has been making from-scratch sweets in a glass-enclosed kitchen for all to see. After one taste, you'll realize how Gatlinburg's "original" candy store has managed to stick around for so long.

JELLY IS OUR JAM

Smoky Mountain Farms Jelly House is reimagining preservatives in ways you never thought possible. From Huckleberry and Boysenberry to corn cob and Moonshine, there are over 80 exciting varieties to choose from. Thankfully, the free samples make the choice a little bit easier.

SOAK IN THE SMOKIES

All-natural and all handmade here in Gatlinburg, the craft soaps, lotions and creams from Misty Mountain Soap Co. are the product of a local mom-and-daughter duo dedicated to healthier skincare. Swing by their workshop to see why they were deemed worthy of Tripadvisor's "Travelers' Choice Award."

STANDOUT SOUVENIRS

The Great Smoky Arts and Crafts Community is alive and well, and Cliff Dwellers is proof of that. Since 1933, the gallery has been showcasing local artisans' work, from paintings and pottery to handwoven linens and baskets, making it a treasure trove of truly exceptional keepsakes.

ARTS & CRAFTS

A Home for Artists of All Kinds

Quality is what our craftspeople do best.

You might not believe us when we tell you that Gatlinburg is home to the largest independent organization of artisans in the U.S.—but one need only step foot in the Great Smoky Arts and Crafts Community to see all the talent our town is home to. Located in the Glades, just three miles (or a short trolley ride) from downtown, the community formed in 1937 when several craftspeople decided that, instead of hauling their wares into the city each day, they would set up shop in their own cozy spot in the mountains to do what they love most: create.

Today, the community consists of an eight-mile loop of shops, studios and galleries where over 100 artists are continuing trades and techniques that have been passed down for generations. At Ownby's Woodcrafts, for example, the family has been fashioning the finest stools, bears, birdhouses, old-fashioned games and other wooden products dating back to the 1800s. But it doesn't stop there. You'll find everything from paintings and ceramics to handcrafted dolls, jewelry and woven goods along the loop.

Fowlers Clayworks

On the off chance no creations catch your eye, many of our artisans are more than happy to teach you how to make your own. Whether you mold clay into a one-of-a-kind keepsake with guidance from a Smoky Mountain potter or learn how to melt and manipulate glass into a delicate decoration at one of our glass blowing studios, you're sure to leave with a handmade memory you'll cherish forever.

A Match Made in the Mountains

Romance is inevitable when your head's already in the clouds.

So, you want to take your relationship to the next level. Heading to the mountains is one way to do it... But tying the knot is more what we had in mind. Gatlinburg is one of the top wedding destinations in the country—and for good reason. Not only do the mountains provide the perfect backdrop for your forever photos, but our hills are strategically dotted with chapels, reception halls and florists to make this your one-stop shop for a stress-free Special Day.

From small gatherings to all-out bashes, we have venues for guest lists of any size. Find charming log chapels for the classic couple or outdoor venues fit for the perfect fairytale beginning. For the more free-spirited, explore eclectic venues to invite friends and family to throw an all-out celebration for the newly wedded couple. From traditional to modern, Gatlinburg is the picture-perfect setting to say, "I do."

Although we do have a soft spot for nuptials, there's still plenty of romance to go around for those going steady or just starting out. Mosey down to the Parkway to find a multitude of places to cozy up with a quality cocktail or set the mood with a candlelit steak dinner by the river. We can't confirm that there's love in the air at this altitude, but we do think you'll find there's an ambiance that can't quite be explained.

CITY PARKS

The Great Outdoors, Inside City Limits

Some of the best trails, fishing and sports in the area are closer than you might think. Our three city parks—Herbert Holt, Mynatt and Mills—provide easy access to recreational fun without having to hike it out to their national neighbor. Each area has free playgrounds, picnic areas and a variety of athletic courts for your enjoyment, as well as covered pavilions that can be reserved for group events or family get-togethers for a modest fee. There's even a brand-new place for pooches to romp around at The Dog Park at Mills Park.
